

Tom Eisiminger is a retired United States Army Officer and decorated combat veteran. In addition to service during Desert Shield/Storm, Tom deployed in support of Operation Desert Thunder I and Desert Thunder II. Tom held numerous leadership positions in the Army from platoon to battalion command. As a staff officer, Tom served on the Joint Staff in the Plans and Policy Division (J5) as a member of the Balkans Task Force. He lead the largest geographically dispersed Army Recruiting Battalion responsible for operations in SW Washington, Oregon, Northern California, Hawaii, Korea, Japan, Guam, American Samoa, Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas Islands, and the Freely Associated States of the Republic of the Marshall Island, Republic of Palau and the Federated States of Micronesia. He twice earned awards as top recruiting unit in the Army.

He is a veteran's advocate and serves on the Board of Advisors and acts as Chairman of the Southwest Region AdvaMed Veterans Program (MVP) where he mentors transitioning veterans interested in joining the medical technology industry. He also serves as President and is on the Board of Directors of the Wounded Warrior Amputee Softball Team, and the Board of Directors of the Warrior Institute of NeuroWellness (WIN)/Horse Rhythm Foundation, a nonprofit organization designed to offer specialized services for veterans, first responders and their families suffering with mental health disorders (PTSD) and physical disabilities (traumatic brain injuries, amputations, etc.) due to combat or public safety tragedies.

He is currently the Vice President of Sales for Regenesi Biomedical, a medical device company dedicated to improving human welfare through the research, design, manufacture, and sale of energy-based medical products and services that alleviate pain, restore health, and improve quality of life. He earned his BS from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, his MA in National Security and Strategic Studies from the Naval War College, and his MBA. from Marylhurst University in Portland, Oregon.